

Safety Leadership Training

for Supervisors and Managers

Excellent leadership skills are critical to the success of a supervisor, manager or team leader. Excellent safety leadership skills can help those in leadership positions become even more effective leaders of people and projects while achieving safety goals and minimizing costs associated with poor safety performance.

Course description

This course is designed for individuals who are in a leadership position that includes responsibility for worker safety. During the course participants will be introduced to the concept of safety culture and will be provided tools for effective safety leadership. The overall goal is to foster leadership skills that help create and support a positive safety culture.

Main topics include:

- why should we care about safety;
- safety culture – definitions, benefits, roles and responsibilities;
- characteristics of an effective leader; and
- safety leadership – how to influence culture in a positive direction.

We can provide this training in a format customized specifically for your organization or in a more collaborative format on campus where participants can actively learn by interacting with leaders from other organizations.
